

NICK'S NEW HEART

---

AUTHOR BIO

Susan May's love affair with books began when she made a bad grade in math in the sixth grade. Not being allowed to watch TV for six weeks, she read. Years later she has turned her love of reading into a love for writing. When her youngest son was born with a serious heart defect and received a heart transplant she knew she had to tell his story. Susan leads workshops on time management, organization, finding the correct writer's conference for you, and making rejection a positive in your writing life.

An Auburn University graduate, she lives with Andy (her husband of twenty-five years) and their four children in Cartersville, GA. She works as a substitute teacher and enjoys reading, collecting decorative apples, traveling, castles, hats, James Bond movies, and cross-stitching.
