

Is Memoir Writing for You?

Copyright @ 2009

Everyone has a life story to tell. But would that story make a good memoir? This workshop will help the writer determine if their story is big enough and has a broad enough appeal to become a book. Information on how to develop a memoir from notes, interviews and memory will be presented. Interview techniques along with how and when to include supporting research will be discussed. Attention will be given to the legal issues that can arise when writing a memoir.

This workshop will be based on my personal experience as a memoir writer.

Materials: Visual aids, interview question handout, and notes handout

The attendee will take away:

1. What makes a good memoir
2. The interview process
- 3, What to consider when writing a memoir
